CARM is coming are you ready!

CBSA Assessment and Revenue Management Initiative (CARM)

CARM will become fully functional, and mandatory, in the spring of 2022 for all importers, including non-resident importers (NRIs) such as U.S. exporting companies acting as the importer of record in Canada.

The Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) has embarked on a new Assessment and Revenue Management initiative, known as CARM. CARM is a multi-phase program designed to relieve the ‘paper burden’ from importers and brokers, and requires importers to deal directly with the CBSA on financial matters. CARM’s second phase is particularly noteworthy: it ushers in changes to the Release Prior to Payment (RPP) program, and requires importers to post their own minimum bond (rather than rely on their customs broker’s) to clear shipments and receive release prior to accounting, tax, and duty payment. Details about CARM (and relevant timelines) can be found on the CBSA Website; if a customs broker already manages your shipments to Canada, contact your broker for additional direction.

Spotlight on Brazil

Agreement on Trade and Transparency Rules with the US is a step forward on the bilateral agenda

This Legislative Decree approves the Protocol to the Trade and Economic Cooperation Agreement signed between Brazil and the United States, specifying trade and transparency.

The protocol is an addendum to the trade agreement and was signed last year and aims to expand trade between the two countries by promoting an open and predictable environment and reducing non-tariff barriers. The original agreement, known by the acronym ATEC (from the English term Agreement on Trade and Economic Cooperation), dates to 2011.

The protocol contains three annexes:
- The first, called Facilitation of Trade and Customs Administration, brings measures to reduce bureaucratic obstacles, such as the creation of information centers by the two countries to respond to queries carried out by interested parties on import and export procedures
- The second Annex, called Good Regulatory Practices, allows, among other things, the coordination between the regulatory bodies of the two nations to facilitate trade
- And the third one, the Anti-Corruption Annex deals with bilateral cooperation in combating corruption related to international trade, through tools such as asset recovery.

Brazil Temporary Lowers Import Tariffs

On November 5th, 2021, the Brazilian government published the Resolution GECEX 269, which lowers import tariffs by 10 percent on 87 percent of all goods and services through December 31, 2022. The list of products and the respective tariff reductions is available in the Annex of the Resolution, which covers almost all products except for sensitive and strategic products, such as automobiles and parts, toys, and textiles. The measure does not apply to products listed on the Mercosur common external tariff (CET) exception list. Brazil used a clause of the Southern Common Market (Mercosur) trade bloc agreement that justifies the measure due to the ‘emergency related to the pandemic crisis, to alleviate its negative effects. Notably, the government adopted the unilateral measure in parallel to Mercosur member states (which includes Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay, in addition to Brazil) negotiation on a similar measure. The measure may become permanent if the Mercosur consensus is secured. The import tariff reduction is aimed at curbing inflation on the domestic market. The Ministry of Economy notes that it will help lower domestic prices through lower prices of imports. Notably, the measure is expected to reduce government revenues by R$3 billion.

Concessions should double railroads in the country in 15 years
The government started to adopt a new, faster, and more bureaucratic concession model authorization, an instrument already provided for in the Brazilian legislation, but little used. This model is now being used to leap forward in the rail modal, explains the Minister of Infrastructure, Tarcísio Gomes de Freitas. According to him, the initial forecast was for 8 requests for the new type of concession. However, there are already 35 requests for authorization, which should represent around 9,000 kilometers of railways and R$ 120 billion in investments. “It's an unprecedented railway push in our history,” said Freitas. The expectation is that the railways, which represent 20% of Brazilian modes, will double their presence in 15 years, going to 40% in 15 years. "We should reduce the Brazil cost by 30%".

The Minister also mentioned expected auctions such as those for the Santos Dumont (Rio de Janeiro city) and Congonhas (Sao Pulo city) airports. “The Rio-São Paulo air bridge is the fourth busiest route on the planet and Brazil will have the largest airport operators in the world, from different nationalities, where some are already positioned in Brazil, others not yet, which will bring lots of investments and a lot of quality to the management of these assets”, said the Minister.
